

NEWLETTER
April 2026

Nashville is about to take center stage – again.

From April 12-14, the Mayor's Office of Nightlife is hosting the RHI Sociable City Summit, bringing together nightlife leaders and city officials from across the U.S. and around the world. It's a big moment – not just for visitors, but for Nashville itself.

This summit is really about connection. It's about people who care deeply about what happens after dark, coming together to share ideas and learn from one another and figure out how nightlife can better serve cities and communities. And Nashville gets to be the backdrop for all of it.

What makes this especially exciting is the chance to show how things work here. Nashville's nightlife isn't just about music (though we do that pretty well). It's about the relationships behind the scenes – between city leaders, venues, artists, and neighborhoods – that make it all possible. Those partnerships are what keep things vibrant, safe, and uniquely Nashville.

And then there's style. You can't really replicate the way this city feels at night, the mix of history, creativity, and energy that spills out onto every street. It's something you must experience, and this summit is the perfect opportunity to share that with the world.

For a few days in April, Nashville won't just be hosting a conference – it'll be opening its doors and saying, "This is how we do it."

Thank you to our incredible local sponsors for helping bring the RHI Sociable Summit to life here in Nashville.

Your support means a lot, not just in making this event possible, but in showing up for the people and partnerships that keep this city's nightlife strong. It takes a community to do this right, and you're a big part of that.

We're grateful to have you with us. Thanks for believing in Nashville and everything that makes it special after dark.
